JULY 18TH - 22ND &
JULY 25TH - 29TH

Auburn University's Birmingham Design Workshop offers engaging DAY camp programs for rising 6th-8th grade students interested in a career in design. Both identical sessions are held at the Auburn University's Urban Studio in Down Town Birmingham.

This week-long camp offers an intensive design experience while exploring the many disciplines of graphic design, industrial design, architecture, and landscape architecture. Through a series of diverse but interconnected, hands-on exercises, students will learn the fundamental principles of design as well as essential skills such as sketching, model making and select aspects of digital design and fabrication. Each day students will learn additional knowledge that will increase their ability to think design. Working in the dedicated space of Auburn University Urban Studio, participants have access to specialized computer software, large-scale printing, and small-scale fabrication capabilities.

In addition to their work in the studio, students will embark on a variety of exciting field trips and visits to professional design offices as well as site-based exercises within the rich, urban city of Birmingham, Alabama. The faculty's diverse background ensures that participants receive a personally broad perspective on design.
